

Before Oklahoma was a state, this part of the country was known as Indian Territory. It would be the new home to Chickasaw people after removal from their Homeland east of the Mississippi River (in the 1830s). The Chickasaw Homelands were located in present day Mississippi, Kentucky, Alabama and Tennessee.