

Once Montford rounded up his herd of cattle, he needed a place to graze. With the help of his good friend Jesse Chisholm, Montford made a deal with the Plains tribes. The tribal leaders agreed to let Montford use their land north of the Arbuckle Mountains for his cattle.